About JFOU

J. F. Oberlin University has nearly 9,000 students, including graduate students and students from overseas. Every year we have about 800 foreign students enrolled at the university. We also have over 150 partner schools in more than twenty countries and regions around the world. Our Japanese students acquire practical experience through a variety of programs, including not only language study and academic exchange programs but also volunteer programs and internship opportunities. The university has established five overseas offices to carry out various activities in international exchange and to support students studying abroad.

Voices from Participants

- I really value all the student visitors, discussions, and lectures.
- The teachers are very helpful in and outside class . They understand each student's Japanese proficiency level.
- I like the discussion of this course. I like to go out the class to visit international company. I had a great experience that I followed this course, so I hope that more students go to this course next year.
- Visiting companies will be interesting for other students. I hope that this course will be held next year for Japanese students too.
